Reviews

Unquestionably, this is actually the very best work by any article writer. It usually does not price a lot of. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Excerpt: .similar to the figures over the door of Cave II. at Ajanta. (See photograph, Plate XXVIJ The verandah is supported in front by six square columns and two pilasters. Each pillar has three brackets, projecting one on each side, and one to the back or inside of the verandah. With one exception all the side brackets are carved with a male and female figure, in different attitudes on each; and each of the brackets, to the inside or roof of the verandah bears a tall female figure. The shoulders of the columns, as in the other caves, are carved with elaborate festoons, c., and on each of the four sides of the lower portions of the shafts are medallions carved with groups of figures. A number, both of the brackets and medallions, have been drawn, but scarcely sufficiently well to do them justice. Photographs XXVI., XXIX., XXX. and XXXI., and of a portion of the sculpture under the drip or eaves in front of the central opening were taken, but the great heat, and accidents to chemicals, c. prevented such extensive use of this means of illustration as might, under more favourable circumstances, have been attempted. Remains of painting are still distinctly traceable on the underside of the eaves, and on the carved roof of the verandah. Possibly traces might also be discovered on the larger images, but unfortunately they have been besmeared with whitewash by some photographer. The full description of the sculpture...
