The General Secretary-Treasurer could not then attend to the many wants of the organization, and so he had to engage two rooms for the General Office and hire a clerk as an assistant. As the years went by, it became necessary to move into an up-to-date office building and to secure four rooms for office purposes with additional help. During the last dozen years the organization grew at a rapid pace. It jumped from a membership of 40, 000 to a membership close to a quarter of a million. This increase meant greater responsibilities and liabilities. It meant more work, a heavier daily mail, a larger office force, and a larger office. It meant that business must be transacted in a business manner in an up-to-date fashion. In order to cope with the growing and numerous demands and...
